Two At The "Mike"

Mike George (left), up to Saturday, was an assistant to his Dad, Percy George (right), auctioneer, but Saturday was the big day when Mike took over the "mike" to become a full-fledged auctioneer in his own right. Mike has just returned from a school for auctioneers and is a fully accredited auctioneer. Percy George has just opened an auction barn and salesroom on Confederate Blvd. (Rt. 460) in the town of Appomattox. Opening sale Saturday involved a shipment of antiques from an estate in Richmond. Additional sales are being planned with two Georges' delivering the sing-song chant of the auctioneer.

From H. C. Blackwell Interview

How 'Dooley' Got His Name

Mr. W. L. Earman ("Dooley") pioneer businessman and county developer of Appomattox, passed away in 1971. Several times in past issues of the TIMES-VIRGINIAN, articles have been written in tribute to "Dooley's" genius with electricity and his ingenuity in "making do" with primitive equipment to set up electric lights, telephone service and an ice plant in the early 1900's in Appomattox.

One such article about Dooley's life was written by Mrs. Rachel F. Lawson and published on August 21, 1969. Mr. H. C. Blackwell, of Appomattox, another friend of the late Mr. Earman made extensive notes about him during a talk he had with Earman on April 25, 1967. Mr. Blackwell said that his material may "shed some light" on the life of this remarkable man, in addition to previously published material.

Answers from that interview (in abbreviated form), follow:

Mr. Martin Luther Earman was born in Rockingham County, two and one-half miles from Harrisonburg, Virginia, on Oct. 10, 1882. He moved to Augusta County to the community of Burketown, commonly called Naked Creek and went to school there.

Mr. Earman came to Appomattox county in the fall of 1907. He first lived in the Knickerbocker Hotel and then in 1910 moved to the "telephone building."

He began work for the Appomattox Telephone Co. in the fall of 1908. Workers at the telephone company at that time included B. J. Parris, Cliff Watson, Jim Childress and Tim Franklin. Mrs. Earman served as "central" or telephone operator.

Mr. Earman said he built a home about 1916 and the electric plant in 1917. In 1920 Mr. Earman began operation of an ice plant in conjunction with the electrical production.

A fire about 1924 destroyed Mr. Earman's electrical plant and H. S. Wheeler furnished power for lights while the plant was out of service. Power to manufacture electricity came from a saw mill engine.

Dooley learned telephone theory and operation from a Mr. Sherman in Burketown. When he was about 16 years old he quit work with Mr. Sherman to work on some long distance phone installations, the first in the state. Dooley also helped his father, Lucian Dewitt Earman, with farm work at the same time.

When he was about 17 years old he worked at Western State hospital at Staunton, leaving there to go to Pittsburg, Pa., to the Westinghouse Electric Company School. He worked and studied there but left before his course was completed.

When Dooley came back from Pittsburgh he and his father went to Loudoun county and brought a farm. He married Elizabeth Bessie Robertson on July 25, 1906.

It was a pay check from the Herndon telephone company in Loudoun county that Earman brought with him to Appomattox that brought him to the attention of local leaders. Cashing it at the Bank of Appomattox, he was asked by Richard Floyd Burke, bank president, whether he knew anything about telephones.

Mr. Burke asked Earman to go to the telephone office located at the hotel to check on the switch board. He corrected some trouble there with tape and by adding more batteries to the outdated battery operated system.

At this time Mr. Burke asked him to attend a meeting of men planning to organize a telephone company. Officers of that company included H.D. Flood, president, Ben Oden, secy, and treasurer; Richard F. Burke, vice president and H.B. Abbitt, and T. E. Smith included on the board of directors. That original company was later sold to H.D. Flood and H.C. Pulliam.

Stockholders in the electric plant included C. W. Hancock, Walter Hancock, S. J. Ferguson, Earman and others.

Mr. Earman had a varied career, including work at Oak Ridge Tennessee for the Tennessee Valley Authority. He was later a tester at Buggs Island Dam, near Clarksville, Va. and had a near fatal accident there.

He lived for several years on Route 460 near Lynchburg and

HOUSING PROJECT IS NAMED 'MEADOWLARK'

David Nash, developer of a housing project on secondary road 1009 near the northern town limits of Appomattox, says that 'meadowlark' has been chosen as the name of the development for medium priced housing.

Nash has installed eight inch water lines to serve 36 lots in the development, connecting with a ten inch main on Patricia Ann Lane.

Nash says that he is not in the "home building" business, but is interested in the new development and can help potential home owners locate contractors and sources for financing.

MRS. BAILEY'S 4-H Club

The last meeting was held on February 4, 1972. The meeting was called to order by the president, Barry Doss. The pledges were said to the flags. The minutes were read and approved. The song leaders led us in some songs. We talked some more about the Speaking Contest. The meeting was turned over to Mr. Sweet. He passed out some slips of paper with topics and questions on it, and on visits to Appomattox enjoyed relaying "the old days" of pioneering in changing the town to a more modern place with telephone service, electric lights and convenience of ice for food keeping.

In talking with Mr. Earman Mr. Blackwell quite naturally got around to the subject of that nickname, "Dooley." Earman recalled that he got the name at the ten pin alley, located years ago in "Chinatown", South Church Street.

It seems that two teams played regularly and with fierce competition. The opposing team was well ahead one evening when Earman hit a strike for his team whereupon T. W. Moses hit him on the back, exclaiming, "You're nothing but a Dooley!" The unusual nickname stayed with Earman throughout the rest of his life.

we had to answer them. We read our answers out to the class. Then the meeting was adjourned.

Where there's a will there isn't always a way.

Having your will drawn by an attorney is an important first step in seeing that your family is financially secure, no matter what. But that's just what it is. A first step.

Because, without continuing guidance of experienced investment counsel, your estate could waste away instead of working efficiently for those who depend on you. And all your good intentions wouldn't be much help to your financially pressed family.

The solution? Talk with a Fidelity trust officer. In clear, straightforward terms, he'll show you what our Trust Department can do to see that your family will always have the financial security they deserve.

With Fidelity, there's always a way.

Farmers Hear About Credit Trends

Jim Nolen, agriculture services officer for Fidelity Bank, led a discussion Thursday night, Feb. 10, on farm credit trends to a group of twenty farmers at Pamplin Elementary School.

"The credit position of farmers has undergone a great deal of change in the past few years. Probably more than farmers even realize," stated Mr. Nolen. Some of the changes discussed were:

1. Farmers need more money to operate.
2. Farmers need to be able to project their credit over a period of time.
3. Bankers need to understand farm business to a greater extent.
4. Banks look more toward the profitability rather than total assets of farmers.
5. Farmers need certainty of loan money.
6. Consultation service of bankers to farmers.
7. Farmers are now beginning to program credit just as they program crops, breeding, etc.

This discussion by Jim Nolen, is part of a program conducted at the Pamplin Elementary School by the Agricultural Education Department of the Appomattox County High School in cooperation with the Pamplin Ruritan Club. R. B. Carter, instructor of agricultural education, conducts the series of classes.

The adult farmers at Pamplin plan a series of ten classes each year. The class started Thursday night, Feb. 3, and will meet each Thursday night until April 20. Any person in the Pamplin area that is interested in this class is invited to participate.

Jim Nolen, (far right) agricultural services officer for the Fidelity National Bank, spoke to the adult farmer class at Pamplin last week. Jim led a discussion on "Farm Credit Trends," Floyd Williams, (far left) branch manager for Fidelity in Appomattox, was along as a consultant on actual banking procedures. This discussion was the second class in a series of ten classes being conducted for farmers in the Pamplin area by the Agricultural Education Department at Appomattox County High School.

Does the news about chemicals and food additives make you nervous? Better pour a cup of coffee to settle your nerves because . . .

There's one product on the market which contains an absolute chemical soup! Ingredients include acetone, methyl acetate, furan, diacetyl, butanol, methylfuran, methylbutanol, isoprene, caffeine, oils, propionaldehyde, methanol, acetaldehyde, methyl formate, ethanol and dimethyl sulfide.

Instructions call for soaking this material in hot water, then it remains a way, and then drinking the water. This concoction is coffee. The list represents the identified chemicals in coffee!
